

Our priorities

Health and safety

We want our employees to return home just as healthy as when they left for work and to enjoy a healthy retirement.

That's why we put safety first!

Every employee is responsible for ensuring their processes and the processes of their fellow workers are performed in the approved safe and prescribed manner. Compliance with occupational safety regulations is mandatory.

Our employees receive regular training in workplace health and safety – according to the Safety Performance Index (SPI).

Product safety and Quality

The safety of our products is key to our company's success. Our hygiene management system provides the framework needed to ensure we are taking every possible precaution to protect our films from contamination.

Our goal is to anticipate the needs of our customers and effectively meet them. We aim to achieve maximum customer satisfaction by offering the highest quality.

We set the highest standards in all areas and across all levels of the business. We only work with companies who acknowledge and implement our guidelines. Ongoing training helps raise awareness of our hygiene and safety guidelines among employees.

For us, this means: Customer orientation; a corporate culture that is based on our quality principles shared by everyone; standardized procedures; tightly controlled processes; employee loyalty; and continuously improving our products and services.

Sustainability

Our aim is to use resources as efficiently as possible and continuously reduce our energy usage.

We are committed to improving quality of life and protecting natural resources. We aim to use resources – e.g. energy, water, raw materials – efficiently and responsibly. Our product portfolio is designed to put our sustainability aspirations into practice. Environmental stewardship is a commitment that requires the support of all employees.

That's why we employ state-of-the-art production systems that increase efficiency.

Additionally, employees are encouraged to report any opportunities to improve energy efficiency to their supervisor.

Our environmental management systems help us ensure that all our products, services and processes play a role in protecting the environment and our planet's resources. We encourage employees to recommend opportunities for environmental improvements – e.g., energy saving initiatives – and to employ resource saving measures – like turning off lights when not in use – at work and in the home environment.

Compliance

We are committed to maintaining the highest standards of business conduct and corporate governance practices worldwide. kp's code of conduct and ethics is based on our values. This is critical to maintain our integrity in the marketplace and necessary for operating a successful and respected business.

Our employees are 100% committed to their functional compliance practices. We demand the same of all parties who work with us. The principles of compliance are set by the functional and business leaders. It goes without saying, we fully comply with the regulations and laws, and compliance is owned by each and every employee of kp.
